New Attacks In Pakistan

Parliament Told Indians 5 Miles Inside Country

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India's army launched two new attacks into West Pakistan today and claimed it had forced a Pakistani withdrawal on the Kashmir front.

India reported Pakistani bombers were driven off in an attempt to attack New Delhi. An air force spokesman in Pakistan said the report was completely false.

Defense Minister Y.B. Chavan told Parliament one Indian spearhead already was five miles into southeast Pakistan.

Reports reaching New Delhi said this force captured Gadra, six miles inside the frontier about 220 miles east of Karachi, Pakistan's main port and naval base. These accounts said the army was advancing toward Wkhrapar, 15 miles inside Pakistan. The Defense Ministry could not confirm these reports.

Chavan said another force crossed the northern frontier near the sector in southwestern Kashmir where the Pakistani army invasion began a week ago. He said this attack was forcing Pakistani units in the Chhamb area of Kashmir to withdraw.

Thus India opened three fronts, in West Pakistan, the third one being in the Lahore sector about 110 miles south of Chhamb.

Reports from Pakistan, however, said all Indian troops had been driven from Pakistani soil on the Lahore front.

A New Delhi spokesman said the thrust into West Pakistan in the southeast was in reprisal for a Pakistani naval bombardment of the port of Dwarika, about 240 miles down the coast from Karachi.

This aroused speculation that Karachi was the Indian target. Karachi is headquarters of the Pakistani navy.

An Indian announcement said the naval attack on Dwarika caused no damage of military significance and damage to civilian life and property was still being assessed.

However, Radio Pakistan claimed the naval shelling destroyed military and radar installations at a base at Dwarika from which it said air attacks on Karachi were being made.

The broadcast added that Indian air force planes attacked the Pakistani navy ships and the naval guns shot down some of the planes. It said the Pakistani ships suffered no losses.

India's other invasion drive, in the Lahore-Amritsar area 500 miles northeast of Barmer, "continued to make progress" despite Pakistani counterattacks which were "being repulsed with heavy losses to the Pakistanis," the Indian announcement claimed.

Marines Claim 44 Cong Kills

Take 50 Suspects In Peninsula Sweep With Vietnamese

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops completed sweeps across the Batangan Peninsula today and reported 44 Viet Cong killed and more than 50 suspects captured.

The Vietnamese troops met the heaviest resistance, on the southern tip of the peninsula 330 miles north of Saigon. They reported killing 39 Viet Cong, and a military spokesman confirmed the count.

The Marines, who landed by sea and by air at dawn Tuesday, swept across the northern tip of the peninsula and encountered virtually no resistance.

The Marines killed five Viet Cong suspects, three of whom tried to escape from an underground cave. The Marines also reported that they captured 50 Viet Cong suspects.

The only U.S. casualty during the first two days of the operation was a noncommissioned officer who was wounded during the helicopter lift of troops into the area.

The South Vietnamese reported they suffered only light casualties.

Two Missourians Killed In Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department announced Tuesday the names of two Army men from Missouri who died in Viet Nam from non-hostile causes. They were Cpl. David E. Gill, son of Mrs. Marybell Gill, 4844 South Broadway, St. Louis; and Warrant Officer Dale L. Tooloose, husband of Mrs. Patricia D. Tooloose, 2422 Tennyson Ave., Overland, Mo.

$364,530 Grant OK'd By Public Health Service

The Public Health Service Tuesday approved a $364,530 grant to Sedalia for alterations and additions in sewer treatment work under the Federal Water Pollution Program, according to a telegram received by the Democrat-Capital Tuesday afternoon. The telegram was signed by Stuart Symington and Edward V. Long, Missouri Senators, and William J. Randall, US Representative.

In talking with a Democrat-Capital reporter Tuesday afternoon, Randall said that he had served on a Congressional subcommittee which held hearings all across the country on the need for water purification programs such as the one now being carried on in Sedalia.

Randall said it was extremely gratifying to him to learn that Federal funds had been approved for the project. "With the water situation such as it is," Randall said, "We may eventually have to use water three or four times and we cannot over-emphasize the need to clean water before returning it to the streams."

Randall also pointed out that he has favored Federal aid to cities in carrying out purification program, "because cities cannot do this due to the cost without some Federal assistance."

Gemini Crew Of Civilians To be Named

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — The first civilian astronauts to fly a Gemini space mission are expected to be named this week.

Top sources say Neil A. Armstrong and Elliot M. See Jr. will pilot Gemini 8, a two-day rendezvous and docking mission expected early next year.

Armstrong, 35, a Korean war veteran from Wapakoneta, Ohio, and See, 38, of Dallas, Tex., were backup crewmen for Gemini 5 astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr., who last week completed a record flight of 190 hours and 55 minutes.

Sources say the Gemini 8 crew must be named soon so they can start the tough, grueling training schedule. A Manned Spacecraft Center spokesman said today the selection probably would be made this week from the astronaut pool — which totals 33.

Armstrong, who was shot down over Korea but parachuted safely behind United Nations lines, is a former X15 test pilot. He had charge of astronaut training before being picked to the Gemini 5 crew last February. He is expected to be named command pilot.

See was a test pilot for General Electric Co. before being named an astronaut in 1962. His shy manner and soft voice seem more applicable to a grade school teacher than a daring astronaut.

He is expected to make a major peace appeal before the assembly.

133 Others Standing On 'Lack of Money'

Elm Disease Claims 205 Trees

Sedalia has lost 205 trees this year and have on a schedule to be removed 133 more, according to a report by Councilman Walter Jesse, chairman of the Street and Alley Committee, to City Council, Tuesday night. Most of the trees died this year from a Dutch Elm disease, Jesse said.

Removal of the 205 trees cost nearly $6,000 and before the additional trees could be removed an additional $4,000 would have to be budgeted to his committee, Jesse reported. He pointed out the $6,000 which had been appropriated earlier for the budget, had all been spent but about $95.

He also reported 1965 had been a "terrible year" for his department due to great damage in alleys where gravel had been washed away and on the streets where much damage resulted from unpreceded rainfall. "We are endeavoring to grade and replace as much rock as possible in the alleys, and making as much street repair as possible with the limited funds in the Street and Alley Department budget," Jesse said.

"We are very happy with the improvements that are being made by the property owners who have many blocks of curb and guttering under construction. This work will greatly help us in our street program and help to keep the streets in better condition, stopping water damage which often washes out streets where no control can be made for lack of curb and guttering," he said.

During his remarks Jesse reported on Benton street which he said he felt the City should and will, do something toward improvement. Benton street runs along the Town and Country Shoe Co. plant; Sedalia Fruit Co., Cunninghams, and the Jarvis garage. "Town and Country desires to expand its operations on both their original factory and on their new building on the west side of Missouri Avenue," Jesse said, "and any enlargement means more employment for Sedalians and this we need badly."

The Council approved requests for construction of curb and guttering on Montgomery from Ninth street to the alley north on the east side of the street. Also in the area of Tenth and Ninth streets on Madison.

Approval was given for a new fire hydrant on Benton Street about 100 feet from where Harrison avenue would run through.

Read before Council was a change order recommended by Burns and McDonnell, to enlarge a water main to run to the North treatment plant from an eight inch to a ten inch main, to coincide with a long range program of the Water Co. It will cost an additional $3,484.80. The Council approved the change.

An ordinance for the City to contract with the State Highway Department to install a school crossing at Broadway and Arlington was passed. An ordinance for a supplementary contract in behalf of the City of Sedalia with the State Highway Department with reference to certain improvements on U.S. Highway 50 and 65, was held up after a first reading until the matter could be studied further.

Savage Blow to Florida

Betsy Is Worst Storm Since '26

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Betsy pushed a six-foot wall of water across Florida's lower east coast today — the highest since the disastrous flood of 1926 — and battered the Florida Keys with savage, 140-mile-an-hour winds.

The mighty tide, pushed by a raging east wind that followed the passage of the storm center, sent the Miami River surging out of its banks for blocks on both sides and into numerous industrial plants.

Pope Paul To Visit The UN

First Papal Travel To United States One-Day Duration

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican press office announced today Pope Paul VI would go to New York to visit the United Nations Oct. 4.

The announcement did not say how long the Pope would spend in New York on the first papal trip to the United States. But the director of the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano said he would be there without some Federal assistance.

Top sources say Neil A. Armstrong and Elliot M. See Jr. will pilot Gemini 8, a two-day rendezvous and docking mission expected early next year.

Councilman James Schumaker reported on approval of the Federal Aviation Agency for $15,915 for the fiscal year of 1966 for improvements at the Sedalia Memorial Municipal Airport as matching funds. The State will grant $15,000 and the City's portion will be approximately $1,000 he reported and asked approval of the Council to go ahead with plans for this project.

The project, he explained, consists of an additional 8,500 square feet of apron area, additional chain-link fencing and other improvements.

The Council unanimously approved the request.

Mayor L. L. Studer introduced the name of W. A. McVey, 1011 Murray, as a member of the Bothwell Hospital Board, replacing Ray Jiedel, 1408 South Barrett, who has resigned. The name was unanimously approved by the Council.

Elsewhere, the waves swamped residential islands and sent salty floods pounding down the streets of Miami, Ft. Lauderdale and other cities. Water surged three feet deep in Miami's palm-lined Biscayne Boulevard.

Not since the infamous storm of 1926, which sent Miami settlers streaming back northward, had a hurricane driven so much seawater ashore.

The metropolitan areas of the Florida Gold Coast apparently escaped major damage from winds which peaked at 105 miles an hour at Miami, considerably lower than expected.

But word still was to come from the smaller communities along the Florida Keys over which the eye of the mighty storm passed, lashing out with 140-mile-an-hour blows.

Despite the hours-long battering of wind and waves, only one death was reported. Helen Cooper, 40, was electrocuted at Miami by a failing power line.

Fear rose, however, for nine persons believed stranded aboard three houseboats in a mangrove inlet at Ragged Key, south of Miami.

"We told them to abandon the boats," a Coast Guard officer said. "They waved us off."

As Betsy raged on westward across the narrow bottom of the Florida Peninsula, aiming for the Gulf of Mexico and the other coastlines ahead, word came that Nassau had been "stunned, shocked and badly damaged" by the hurricane.

But Etienne Dupuch, publisher of the Nassau Tribune and acting premier of the islands, said in a telegram to The Associated Press that "so far we have no casualties."

This seemed miraculous in view of the 12-hour beating the 50,000 residents of the Bahamian capital took from the storm Tuesday.

Probably the greatest damage dealt by the wind on the Florida mainland was the destruction of overhead power lines which knocked out electric service to 80 per cent of Miami and Fort Lauderdale customers. This meant for many of them days of living without lights, refrigeration or cooking facilities.

House trailers were smashed and there was the other inevitable wind debris in the hurricane's wake — shattered windows, fallen signs, utility poles and trees.

The water was the great destroyer. Along Collins Avenue, Miami Beach's famed "Hotel Row" was hit hard by the tides.

mainland was the destruction of entirely across Key Biscayne, a resort and residential island off the mainland at Miami, and three barges torn loose from their moorings by the wind knocked out the island's only escape route, the Rickenbacker Causeway. Its harbor was reported "in shambles."

Key Biscayne residents had been warned to evacuate the island, but the tide there was not as high as expected and there was no report of casualties.

The Weather

Fair and pleasant tonight with the low around 60. Sunny and pleasant Thursday with the high 85 to 90. Winds light and variable through Thursday.

The temperature Wednesday was 73 at 7 a.m., and 89 at noon. Low Tuesday night, 72.

The temperature one year ago today was high 92; low 70; two years ago, high 89; low 66; three years ago, high 79; low 60.

Proposed One-Way Traffic Plan Sidetracked At Meet

Council Orders Probe

Storm Drainage Complaints Aired

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

The proposed ordinance for one-way traffic on Lamine and Osage Avenues was brought before City Council Tuesday night, but protests from various business persons resulted in the action being delayed for a time at least.

Before final action is to be taken, members of the Council called for a report from a representative of Hare & Hare, city planners, the firm recommending the change in traffic flow.

Councilman Floyd Priddy spoke in defense of the proposed ordinance, declaring it was a recommendation of the firm which had prepared future planning of Sedalia. He also said the recommendation had come from the Citizens Traffic Committee, as recommended by the hurricane.

Waging War On Glamour In Africa

ZOMBA, Malawi (AP) — Figure-hugging skirts, tight sweaters and makeup can get an African girl into trouble these days.

Many black African countries, traditionally touchy about how their womenfolk appear in public, have declared war on some types of artificial glamour.

Hip-swinging African girls who try to imitate their white Western counterparts are coming under heavy fire, not only from their menfolk but also from their governments.

"Back to nature," was the call from one government-controlled African newspaper, deplored the use of Western beauty aids.

African youths in the Malawi capital, Zomba, took the law into their own hands, scouring the city for sexually dressed girls.

Tight-fitting dresses were ripped off. Lipstick-smeared mouths were scrubbed with sandpaper.

In neighboring Zambia, the government stepped in. Dozens of girls were hauled before the country's ruling political party and warned that disciplinary action would be taken if they continued to use revealing dresses and makeup.

Tight jeans, short skirts, peeking petticoats and high-heeled shoes are definitely out, they were told.

Some Tanzanian males consider un-African all forms of artificial aids to beauty. Many a smartly dressed girl has been warned that Western beauty aids are a legacy of colonial days and undermine new found African freedom.

Some of South Africa's more sophisticated girls spend hours in hair-straightening saloons, but many are having second thoughts about whether it's all worth it.

Razor-wielding African youths shaved the locks of straight-haired girls recently.

Kenya is also up in arms. Many girls found themselves in jail when a roundup of sirens took place in Nairobi.

One African newspaper headlined the question: "Why do you girls use lipstick and powder? Are you ashamed of being African? Take it off."

Some African cities offer pay-later beauty courses, fashionable wigs and daring Western dresses for the modern black miss willing to buck tribal tradition.

Yet in the jungle their country cousins spend hours adorning themselves in much the same way — and nobody protests.

For generations, jungle belles have plastered their hair with mud in a straightening process.

Many scamper around half naked, soak their bodies in grease, daub their faces with soot and chalk and even wear gruesome masks in efforts to attract the local heartthrob.

YOUTHFUL MARINER — It's going to be a long but not completely lonely voyage for Lee Graham, 16, in his 24-foot-sloop "Dove." Setting out from San Pedro, Calif., Lee is heading around the world without benefit of ship-to-shore radio but with two kittens as shipmates. Gambling Is Booming In England

LONDON (AP) — The man who used to try to break the bank at Monte Carlo can come to England now. Casino gambling is "in."

Roulette, dice and the subtleties of chemin de fer and baccarat — once all illicit here — are a booming business from this metropolis to Glasgow, from Berkeley Square to a byway at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

"We're already putting a big dent in the action at such continental spot as Cannes, Deauville and Ostend," says an insider at one prosperous Knightsbridge spot.

By the estimate of individual entrepreneurs — the casinos so far have stubbornly refused to get together in any kind of trade association — London alone has about two dozen permanent clubs and several hundred transient centers catering to the sporting populace.

How many punters (bettors) there are is anyone's guess — the hard core casino cohorts are somewhere between 1,500 and 6,000 in London — but the economic magnitude of all gaming activity is given in figures published recently by the Churches' Council on Gambling, a canonical research group.

It reported $2.5 billion lavished by players during 1964 on such diversions as horse races, football pools and assorted games of chance. That's an increase of $63 million from the previous year.

Impetus for the boom was provided by Parliament's Betting, Gaming and Lotteries Act which became the law of the land in 1961. It took a while longer to make the act's provisions fully felt.

Down amid the abstruse verbiage were two vital authorizations. One permitted establishment of public shops to take bets on races, a pastime permissible primarily via legalized bookies. The other allowed formation of private clubs where members could dare the odds at green felt tables without interference.

It's a question whether sponsors of the gambling law realized where the provision concerning private clubs would lead. But in combination with a loophole in the revenue laws which exempts the winnings of non-professional gamblers from income tax, the stipulation turned out to be an irresistible opportunity for alert promoters.

"More and more business executives are among our members," said Eric O. Tripp, a consultant to one flourishing center.

"You see, there isn't a great deal of incentive for business under all of today's regulations, and a good many businessmen seem to feel that gambling is the only way to make a quick bit. It's become the 'in' thing to do."

At the top of London's array are a half dozen clubs, with seniority going to Crockford's. This elegant spot was a gambling speakeasy long before legalization of such entertainment, for a distinguished clientele that included sizable chunks of both "Debrett's Peerage" and "Who's Who."

At $150 annual dues it remains the most expensive, with a long waiting list.

Other leading card-and-wheel centers are Quent's, an off-shoot of Crockford's, yearly fee, $50; the Curzon, Twenty-One, the Victoria, Knightsbridge Sporting and the Olympic. Depending on where you are, you can bet as low as 28 cents at roulette, as high as $70 for 45 minutes of chemin de fer.

A club in process of formation is the King's, which aims to outdo the existing group in opulence. Bill McCallum, a veteran of the New York-London-Las Vegas circuit who is promoting the project, feels the time has come for pepping up England's funhouses.

"They've made the mistake of just copying the stuffy casinos at continental resorts," he says. "Dreary, dirty, with potted plants in the corner and nicotine stains on the ceiling."

Having leased a Grafton Street mansion where Lord Brougham invented his famous carriage, McCallum is modeling the King's upon the pleasure stains on the ceiling."

Croupiers and table assistants are being imported from all over the Continent; Canadians have been brought in to run craps tables (Americans have difficulty getting work permits).

Several clubs have set up schools to train Englishmen in the intricacies of trente et quatre, wherein the odds slightly

Answers
Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: My problem is out of the ordinary. Please come up with some badly needed advice.

Our only child is nine years old. A few days ago Molly received a note and two dimes from a little boy who is a classmate of hers. The note said, "Dear Molly, I want to be your boy friend. Here is 20c. Please go out and buy yourself a present. It will mean you are my sweetheart."

A friend who happened to be here thought it was the cutest thing she ever heard of. I feel differently. In my opinion, if this isn't handled wisely it could be very damaging to our daughter and to the little boy as well. What should be done about it?—B.B. OF PEORIA.

Dear B.B.: Molly should return the 20c. Explain to her, so that she can explain to the little boy, that they are too young to be sweethearts, but that she would like him for a friend—and friends don't give to each other gifts or money to seal the friendship.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a high school junior who is confused about love and sex. How can a person tell the difference?

I am going steady with a guy my parents don't like very much. My dad says Ron will never amount to anything. Maybe he won't but I don't care. He's the only fellow who ever gave me a thrill. In other words Ron turns me on.

It's getting harder and harder to keep from going all the way. Ron says if two people love each other it's O.K. I think he's right, but the big question is how can I tell if it's really love or just plain sex? Please help me, Ann. I'm — BETWEEN HEAVEN AND HELL.

Dear Between: Sex is the instinctive response to a biological urge. It is one set of glands calling to another. Sex is like a sneeze—it is a physical release with no emotional investment.

Love is a combination of respect, admiration and the desire to give and to please. Love is developmental. It must take root and grow—one day at a time. Love contains the magic element of physical excitement but this feeling comes with discovering and appreciating the other qualities. The perfect love is communication in its most complete and selfless form. It is worth saving for that very special

'Disrespect For Law' Is Subject At Optimist Meet

"The Problem of Disrespect for Law," was the subject on which Rev. Charles Hendrickson spoke to Optimist Club Tuesday noon at Bothwell Hotel in the first of a series of talks to be presented on this subject during the month of September.

Introduced by Jim Ripley, program chairman, the speaker said that the first problem is the lack of discipline in the home. If there is no discipline in the home it will crop up in school, and that is the second problem. No. 3, there is no discipline in church, and this is among the ones that the church is trying to reach. They send the children who sometimes, without the parents, run wild because they have never been taught. No. 4, is they have no respect for the authorities.

Hendrickson then asked for an open discussion to which Wray Schroeder pointed out that examples set by adults meant much to the children, for they watch, and any traffic violations they are quick to see. "If he can do something that violates the law, I can too."

The meeting was presided over by Wray Schroeder, president, with invocation by Lee Deason. Music was by Mrs. Mae Pulliam.

When nobody takes time to show them the right way, said Hendrickson, then they too often get in the wrong crowd, and get in trouble when they could be guided the other way.

The third segment was primarily devoted to an explanation of how, by drawing a line on Communist encroachment, we were drawn first into Korea and then into South Viet Nam as we moved to try to contain the Chinese Reds as well.

It was an intelligent and calm analysis, particularly enlightening at a time when tragic events tend to obscure and confuse issues.

This admiring viewer would like, however, to inject one strong note of criticism. It was far, far too long a single program to impose at one sitting even on the most eager viewer.

NBC would have done us all a favor if it had broken the program into three parts for showing on three successive nights.

The second part dealt with our policy as it affected peoples of the emerging and underdeveloped nations, explaining our foreign aid programs and touching on the Cuban and Dominican crises.

The fourth segment was primarily devoted to an explanation of how, by drawing a line on Communist encroachment, we were drawn first into Korea and then into South Viet Nam as we moved to try to contain the Chinese Reds as well.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Willie Bybee (Marshall)

Mrs. Willie L. Bybee, 69, Marshall, died at a nursing home in Marshall Tuesday night.

Mrs. Bybee was born in Edwards July 17, 1896, the daughter of the late M. C. and Sarah Byrd Green. She was married March 9, 1913, at the home of her parents in Edwards to Willie L. Bybee, who survives. Also surviving are a son, Craven Bybee, LaMonte; two daughters, Mrs. Travis Miles, Warsaw, and Mrs. Tom Absher, Marshall; four grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. Fannie Hockman, Edwards. Mrs. Martha Dyer, Sedalia and Mrs. Elbert Bybee, Sedalia.

She was a member of the Bethel Camp Grounds Methodist Church, Edwards.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at the Bethel Camp Grounds Methodist Church, with the Rev. Steve Gardner officiating. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Masonic services for William Hampton Page, Chula Vista, Calif., who died Friday, will be held at the Gillespie Funeral Home at 1 p.m. Thursday. Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery.

Mrs. Hannah Lucas

Funeral services for Hannah Lucas, 519 West Cooper, who died Sunday night, will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at Taylor Chapel Methodist Church with the Rev. Aquilla Wheadon officiating. Burial will be in Crown Hill Annex Cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Mark Powell, Vincent Banks, Oscar Larson, Lucius Carter, L. P. Valentine and Lawrence Kerr.

The family will receive friends from 8 to 9 p.m. Wednesday at the Alexander Funeral Home.

Canadian Election Scheduled Nov. 8

OTTAWA (AP)—Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson Tuesday night scheduled a general election Nov. 8 in an attempt to win a majority in the House of Commons for his Liberal party.

It will be Canada's fifth general election in eight years.

In the 1963 election, the Liberals won only 129 of the 265 seats in Commons and since then have governed with the support of minor parties.

Pearson, announcing the election, said his party's position had become increasingly shaky during the summer.

"I believe that the Canadian people want to solve the big problems, to get on with the important tasks facing them, to get on with the job of building the new Canada," he said in a radio-television address.

France Spurns SEATO Partners

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—France failed to join its other seven partners in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization today in congratulating the anti-Communist alliance on its 11th anniversary.

The action—unprecedented in SEATO's history—was interpreted as another move by French President Charles de Gaulle to disassociate his government from SEATO support of U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

Accuse Moslems Of Plotting Coup

CAIRO (AP)—The United Arab Republic government has accused the extremist Moslem Brotherhood of plotting to overthrow the regime of President Gamal Abdel Nasser through a campaign of terrorism and murder.

The alleged plot was disclosed following the arrest of more than 1,000 supporters of the fanatical Brotherhood, which was forced underground after it broke with Nasser in 1952.

Minor Damage To American Consulate

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—More than 4,000 Communist-led demonstrators did minor damage to the American consulate at Surabaya, East Java, Tuesday and demanded that it be closed, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said.

None of the five Americans at the consulate was injured, the spokesman said, but staff members' cars parked in front were damaged.

The Mo-Pac president said delivery of the new equipment should be completed by the middle of next year.

Mildred Taylor Hazen (Bartlesville, Okla.)

Mrs. Mildred Taylor Hazen, a former resident of LaMonte, died Sept. 3, at Bartlesville, Okla.

Born at LaMonte, May 28, 1905, she was the daughter of G. M. and Ada Weathers Taylor, and received her elementary grade and high school there. After the death of her mother when she was a small child she lived in the home of her uncle, the late John F. Taylor, former Pettis County sheriff.

She was married to J. Randolph Hazen in Oklahoma and spent most of her married life there.

Surviving besides her husband, are a daughter, Mrs. Harry Brown, Denver, Colo., a son, William Hazen, of Bartlesville, five grandchildren, a paternal aunt, Mrs. Grace Scott, Kansas City; and maternal aunts and uncles, Mrs. Robert Marshall, and Mrs. Claude Crole, LaMonte; Mrs. Lena Boothe and M. D. Weathers, Sedalia, and Victor Y. Weathers, South Gate, Calif.

Funeral services and burial were at Bartlesville, Tuesday.

Mrs. Alice Walter (Jefferson City)

Mrs. Alice Walter, Jefferson City, died at a Jefferson City Hospital at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday. Mrs. Walter lived in Centertown until she moved to Jefferson City two years ago due to ill health.

Surviving relatives include four brothers-in-law in the Sedalia area, Carl Walter, Route 4, John Walter, Route 1, Ed Walter, Smithton, and Fred Walter, Smithton. Other survivors include two sons, Theodore Walter, Jefferson City, and Leslie Walter, Centertown; two daughters, Mrs. Elmira Palmer, Columbia, and Mrs. Joe Blais, Minneapolis, Minn.; two granddaughters, two great-grandchildren, and one sister, in the State of California.

The body is at the Freeman Funeral Home, Jefferson City. Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday with burial in New Hope Cemetery, near Centertown.

Rolling Stock Expense

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Missouri Pacific Railroad plans to spend $44,745,000 on rolling stock, President Downing B. Jenkins said Tuesday.

Jenkins said his railroad plans to order 50 new locomotives and 2,050 new freight cars. The company also will rebuild another 1,820 freight cars.

The Mo-Pac president said delivery of the new equipment should be completed by the middle of next year.

that time until school was out the crossing was guarded by the School Boy Patrol. "However," she said, "the Parent-Teachers Association does not feel these Patrols should be handled by the children. An adult should be on duty."

Councilman Bob Wells started to make a motion to put the additional Crossing Guards on duty, but withdrew the motion when Mayor L. L. Studer, remarked: "I believe the matter was discussed in the pre-Council meeting and it was agreed to discuss the matter further with the Finance Committee."

Chief Miller delivered to City Clerk Ralph Dedrick a letter from the Police Personnel Board referring to a request last spring for an additional five patrolmen. The letter was read by Councilman and Miller reported the police have one patrol car which is not used at night because of the shortage of police officers.

Councilman Walter Jessee inquired if the police budget was so arranged to take care of the additional men. Miller replied "no," indicating it would take an increase in the budget.

Councilman Ralph Walker then moved that Chief Miller confer with the Finance Committee regarding any increase in personnel and give the Committee a chance to study the request and report back to the Council for any action. The motion unanimously carried.

Proposed

out that someone had injected Jefferson City's traffic into the discussion, along with Marshall and other towns. He said: "As to Jefferson City, they have the worse traffic control I've ever seen. I personally favor the one-way traffic for Osage and Lamine."

Barry Williams, Williams Transfer and Storage Co., said the proposal would cause his firm to go out of business, pointing out the flow on Osage would make it impossible for them to use their trucks and trailers which have doors on the right hand side and there would be no way for them to reach their docks without violation of the ordinance by going the wrong way on Osage.

Councilman Priddy favored a

90-day trial of the one-way flow, north from Broadway to Main on Lamine and south to Broadway on Osage.

Councilman James Askren said he favored anything that would improve Sedalia's traffic but from what he had heard discussed during the meeting, he felt the matter should be held up until a representative from

Hare and Hare could come to Sedalia and explain the actual benefits from the change and why it should be made.

"I would rather withhold any action on the matter until we hear an explanation from the Hare and Hare representative.

I move the matter be held up until that time," Askren said.

His motion was seconded and the Council voted to withhold any action until a further investigation is made.

On the vote one voice was heard to say no and Mayor L.

L. Studer called for a roll call vote. Councilman Askren, James Schumaker, R. N. Snavely, Walter Jessee, Bob Wells, Ray Simon and Ralph Walker voted in favor of the motion and Prid-dy voted no.

Swiss Guard Reduced

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The full strength of the Vatican's Swiss Guard has been cut from 100 to 75, and the guard is down to 68 men because of recruiting difficulties.

Richard Charles Wilson, Bar-

stow, Calif., charged with vagrancy, pleaded innocent, but after a hearing was found guilty

and sentenced to 10 days in the city jail.

Iida Margaret Wilson, Bar-

stow, Calif., charged with vag-

rancy, pleaded innocent, but

after a hearing was found guilty

and sentenced to 10 days in the city jail.

J. L. Mathewson, 2400 South

Kentucky, charged with failure to pay three overtime parking tickets, forfeited an $8 bond.

Two Whiteman AFB airmen

signed statements Tuesday afternoon admitting the theft of articles from several cars in Sedalia late Saturday night, police officers here reported.

Airmen Robert Fiamiano, 21, and James Brown, 22, were brought to Sedalia Tuesday afternoon by Asst. Chief Charles

Knapp and Sgt. John McDonald

Eyewitnesses Saturday told police they had seen several cars broken into and gave officers license number information which led to the pair's apprehension.

Both were charged with petit larceny. They were fingerprinted and then released to the custody of Sgt. Paul Stephens, Whiteman AFB, for return to Sedalia Wednesday morning to appear in police court.

Revolution In Three R's

By G. K. HODENFELD
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The revolution in the three R's, now putting meat and muscle into everything from first-grade reading to twelfth-grade physics, probably will continue for another 10 years.

Then it will have to begin all over again.

As children are better prepared in grade school, even the already-improved junior high programs will have to be beefed up to keep them interested. Better preparation in junior high, in turn, requires more challenging programs in the high schools.

Mary Jones, entering the first grade this fall, will have 8 or 9 years of science by the time she is in high school. Even today's new and rugged biology, chemistry and physics will be comparatively soft touches and will have to be strengthened.

The same is true in math, where children in the first three grades are being introduced to algebra and geometry. Traditional high school courses in civics and economics will be forced into the academic ashcan by the new elementary school social studies courses.

A growing number of schools are discarding the traditional "Oh, oh, oh," and "Look, look, look," readers and are teaching first graders to read and enjoy Aesop's Fables and other children's classics. Improved reading ability alone will have a tremendous effect on every part of the school curriculum.

The revolution in the three R's isn't all from the first grade up. It works from the top down as well. When a new and tougher course is introduced in high school, it quickly becomes obvious that there must be better preparation for it in the lower grades.

Thus, the committee which developed the new high school physics is now at work on a ninth-grade course in introductory physical science. The idea: Narrow the gap between what a youngster learns in junior high and what he needs to know to be comfortable with advanced high school science.

Educators agree that the real impact of the revolution is still to come.

John Goodlab of the University of California at Los Angeles had this warning in a report:

"It is dangerous to assume that curriculum change has swept through all of our 85,000 public elementary schools and 24,000 public secondary schools during this past decade of reform."

"Tens of thousands of schools have scarcely been touched, or not been touched at all, especially in areas of very sparse or very dense population."

"Tens of thousands of teachers have had little opportunity to realize what advances in knowledge and changes in subject fields mean for them. Tens of thousands hold emergency certificates or teach subjects other than those in which they were prepared."

"In the elementary schools, teachers with backgrounds in science and mathematics constitute a species that is about as rare as the American buffalo."

Paul Klinge, assistant to the president of Indiana University, said in an interview:

"The curriculum reforms haven't really hit the colleges yet, but they will within five years."

"Last fall, five per cent of the freshmen at Indiana University had had the new physics in high school, about seven per cent had studied the new chemistry, and about ten per cent the new biology."

"When the impact does hit the colleges, it's really going to shake up things on the campus. And in 10-15 years, new programs now being put in the elementary schools and junior highs are going to change things so much that we'll have to have an entirely new reform movement."

Basic to the revolution in the three R's is the realization by educators that children can learn more, and learn it earlier, than had ever been imagined. More than that — they enjoy it.

Dr. Jerryold R. Zacharias, professor of physics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a prime mover in curriculum reform, puts it this way:

"It's wrong to say that we are pushing things from the graduate school down to the elementary grades. That's not the object at all — to cram more and more things into more and more heads."

"We're trying to get kids thinking in sophisticated areas, trying to find ways to make kids use their heads. And it turns out kids like to use their heads."

"One of the things we really believe is that kids are brighter than you think. There are all sorts of ways you can get kids trapped into intellectuality."

Dr. Jerome Bruner, professor of psychology at Harvard, created quite a stir in 1960 when he wrote, "Any subject matter can be taught to anybody at any age in some form that is honest."

Much of today's curriculum reform is based on that hypothesis.

The success of any such reform rests ultimately with the classroom teacher. Unfortunately, most teachers were not prepared yesterday for the new tasks they face today.

The situation is not so bad at the high school level, where many teachers have college majors in the subject they are teaching. Even so, the most experienced high school teachers often are those farthest removed from the latest developments in their fields.

For this reason, curriculum innovators concern themselves almost as much with the teacher as with the child.

As the revolution in the three R's continues to spread, one question is constantly asked: Won't this lead to a national curriculum, with every student in every part of the country studying the same course in the same grade?

James R. Killian Jr., president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, says the revolution actually does the opposite — it encourages diversity and non-conformity in the educational system.

"Although there were many textbooks on mathematics 20 years ago," he told a congressional committee, "each text, by and large, was teaching the same math with little dissimilarity."

"During the past five years, new and bolder and diverse ways of teaching mathematics have been developed (and) our schools have wider and wiser choice."

WATERTOWN, Mass. (AP) — They've been teaching science in the elementary schools for years, haven't they? The children have gathered and pressed leaves, looked at rock collections, read about the wonders of electricity, and learned words like volt and electron.

We pause now for a word of dissent from Prof. Ben Nichols:

New Manpower Mark

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — The world's pool of labor manpower will reach 1.5 billion in 1975, compared with 1.1 billion in 1960, according to papers presented at the world population conference here.

"With rare exception, the children have not been learning science in the elementary schools. At best, they've picked up a bit of the vocabulary.

"The way to learn science is with personal experimentation. You look at the material, you touch it, push it, pull it, burn it, find out all you can about it."

"You don't learn science just by reading something about it."

Nichols, on leave from Cornell University, is director of the elementary science study, a curriculum reform project of Educational Services, Inc., a nonprofit organization originally established to handle the high school physics program.

Science is important to grade school children, Nichols said in an interview, because "they should not be isolated or alienated in an increasingly technological society. This is probably more important to those not going on to college than to those who do."

"Kids need a chance to get involved in learning about and exploring their environment in ways that excite and interest them," Nichols said. "They need an opportunity to understand what's going on in the world around them, and what other people are doing in that world."

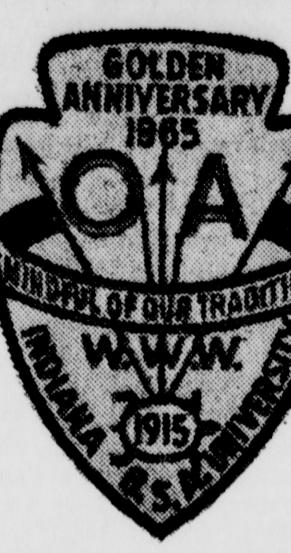

The program under development here is not a rigid, structured curriculum reaching from first grade through the eighth. Rather, it is a series of 25 units, each with kits of ingenious but inexpensive laboratory materials for the children.

"We're not trying to build a curriculum," Nichols said, "we're trying to provide the ideas and materials so the teachers and the schools can create their own curriculum."

"We want to produce a program in which we say to the teacher, 'Here are some materials, pick out the right ones for your class.'"

Five of the 25 units are being tested in the schools on a nationwide basis as part of new techniques in teaching being introduced in U.S. schools. They are: "Growing Seeds" (grades 1-3), "Behavior of Mealworms" (grades 5-8), "Kitchen Physics — A Look at Some Properties of Liquids" (grades 5-8), "Gases and Airs" (grades 5-8), and "Small Things — An Introduction

Fireman A Jack Of All Trades

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — A fireman in Portugal is a jack of all trades.

He must not only know how to put out a fire, but be prepared to rescue cats from high trees, old ladies from locked houses, deliver babies in ambulances, rescue wrecked seamen, fill swimming pools, play a trumpet or a bassoon, snap into a frogman's rubber suit, and march up and down village streets in frequent parades.

This goes for both of the two existing fire-fighting bodies in the land. One is the 1,500-man city professional corps of Sapadores Bombeiros, the other the nationwide Bombeiros Voluntários, which number 14,000. They are among the most highly trained and versatile organizations in Portugal.

In the villages the voluntary fire corps is the very heart of social, economic and cultural life. It provides its own funds by house-to-house collections, public festivals, concerts, and renting its premises for village gatherings. It is a sort of club, to which most of the young men of the village belong.

The official city fire fighters, divided into 21 companies, have worldwide repute, and have won many international prizes. They exist in Lisbon, the capital; Oporto, the second city, and Coimbra, of university fame. Last year the Lisbon Sapadores Bombeiros were host to the world's "visiting firemen" at the International Firemen's Congress.

This month the professional firemen's corps is celebrating its 20th anniversary.

Before World War II, there were no proper firemen in Portugal at all. Public-spirited neighbors rushed round, bucket in hand, to help put out each other's fires. This wasn't very effective, since slow communications and muddled methods meant the loss of property and sometimes life.

What to do? Early this century there were many "Gallegos" living in Lisbon. These Spaniards from the province of Galicia, which borders on northern Portugal, formed an important part of the hard-working city community as waiters, messengers, furniture removers, dockers, and such like modest wage earners. They were the first regular fire-fighters.

The next thing was to create an efficient alarm system, for there were no telephones, no taxicabs, no quick means of communication.

Somebody decided that church bells might also play their part as fire alarms. A special toll of the bells called the Gallegos to the spot of the blaze but often they did not find the fire until too late, pushing and heaving their heavy carts with water all the way, only to find smoking ruins when they finally arrived.

Then they tried a different chime for each parish, so that at least the firemen would know which district to make for. But the Gallegos were apt to forget which chime belonged to which parish, and the last state was worse than the first. So a popular poet put them into a rhyme that was easy to learn, and a slight improvement in firefighting was then noticeable.

In addition, prizes were offered to the group arriving first at a fire, and this speeded up proceedings a little.

Horses and mules brought the water carts more quickly. Better equipment evolved until now both professional and voluntary firemen in Portugal have motorized equipment equal to that of any country in the world.

Africa's highest point is Kilimanjaro (19,320 feet) and its lowest the Sahara Desert (150 feet).

BOYS CLUB NOTES

Several new projects will be inaugurated this fall at the Boys Club in addition to the regular program. One is the United Nations day which this year will be observed Oct. 24. Since this falls on a Sunday the club will celebrate on the following day.

This is the 20th anniversary year of the United Nations, this year the theme is International Cooperation Year. In this program club members will be asked to compete in poster contest, essay contest and groups will be encouraged to establish a pen pal program with the youth of other countries.

A special assembly program on the United Nations with "international cooperation" as the theme is designed to help capture the interest of the boys and their parents.

This will be arranged with probably a concert, colorful folk dancing, and some well known speakers and foreign students as guests.

With the opening of the club on Wednesday some new equipment has been purchased, some donated and more will be provided as the need arises. Pool tables have been placed in good condition and are ready for action. Tournaments will be held for table tennis, pool, bumper pool, free throw contests and physical fitness tests with awards presented to winners. Basketball practice will get under way at once.

The past summer the boys enjoyed several hikes and some fishing trips.

The staff has been busy the past several weeks answering questions concerning entering service and a number of the boys have enlisted for military service. Movies of the various branches of service were shown. It is planned that movies of service programs will be shown this winter for boys who are near military age.

On a clear day, it is possible to see nine volcano cones from Latacunga, Ecuador.

Each room in the building has been redecorated, several rooms have new furniture, some of the old furniture has been sanded and refinished.

The work was done by members of the Neighborhood Youth Corps.

MONSTER MELONS—Martin Graddy of Evening Shade, Ark., shows off giant watermelons weighing 106, 108 and 110 pounds, all on the same vine, and they aren't the only oversize numbers in his patch. He has 40 between 90 and 110 pounds. None tops his 1961 record, however—a 141-pound melon.

269 Enrolled In Otterville School System

The Otterville public schools opened Tuesday, Aug. 31, with a total enrollment of 269, with 200 enrolled in the grade schools and 69 in the high schools.

The faculty includes three new teachers. Miss Mary Ann Whitt, Warrensburg, will teach social studies; Mrs. John Schupp, Pilot Grove; mathematics; LaVerne Brummer, Higginville, commercial subjects.

Other members of the faculty are: Superintendent C. M. White, Mrs. Frances Moran, Mrs. Vera Davis, Lee Roy Raabe and Willard Kalthoff.

Mrs. Elaine Griffith will teach first grade; Mrs. Melba Woodford, second; Mrs. Johnny Mae Kreisel, third; Mrs. Alice Ash, fourth; Woodrow Heldenbrand, fifth; Mrs. Evalene Paul, sixth; Mrs. Joan Schupp, seventh; Mrs. Mary Burford, eighth; Mrs. Ruth Zumstet, special education.

KC Pares Down To Player Limit

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs pared down to the American Football League player limit of 38 Tuesday by cutting two veterans and four rookies and by placing two others on the injured and reserve lists.

The two three-year veterans cut were 6-foot-1, 255-pound Denney Bielowski, 25-year-old guard from Memphis State, and ex-North Carolina tackle Bob McAdams. McAdams, 25, who is 6-foot-3 and 250-pounds, was obtained last week from the New York Jets.

Defensive end Alphonse Dotson, a 225-pound rookie from Grambling, was placed on reserve. Solomon Brannan, a rookie defensive halfback who suffered a shoulder separation in last Saturday's Boston game was placed on the injured deferred list.

The rookies placed on waivers were:

Sam Longmire, 22, defensive halfback, 6-3, 195, from Purdue. Ron Heller, 25, halfback, 6-2, 200, from Southern California. Bud Abell, 24, linebacker, 6-3, 222, from Missouri.

SCHOOL SLOW

SERIOUSLY...

We are always responsible for the lives of others when we drive our automobiles, but at no time of the year are we called upon to exercise more caution than during the first few weeks of the new school year. There are many children crossing streets for the first time in their young lives. They are supposed to be careful too... but they do not ALWAYS do it. If your car is not in tip top running condition we urge you to bring it in and let us check it over for you. DID YOU KNOW, almost all of the inspection given your car costs you nothing and at the same time saves you hundreds of DOLLARS?

Big One Got Away From White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox let the big one get away from them Tuesday night in a display of pitching futility which is rare for Al Lopez' corps.

The White Sox, who face the league-leading Minnesota Twins for the final time this season in a two-game set beginning tonight, scored four runs in the first inning but before the game was over the Cleveland Indians had carved out a 9-5 triumph.

The loss dropped the Sox five games behind the Twins.

Ordinarily, the White Sox can win a pair of games with four runs and usually Lopez would be doing a slow burn over blowing such a lead.

"Sure it was a big game for us," said Lopez. "They're all big and all losses are hard to take. But we simply didn't have the pitching and when you don't have the pitching any lead can be overcome."

"I used seven pitchers in the doubleheader Monday," said Lopez. "It was obvious (Juan) Pizarro didn't have it. I went for Tommy John hoping he'd give me a couple of good innings before going for the knuckleballs. But John didn't have it, either."

"We have to beat the Twins twice now but even if we had beaten Cleveland we still would have to win twice from Minnesota," he added.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore swept New York 4-2 and 9-5 and Detroit trimmed Boston 5-3.

The loss was tough to take for the White Sox in one respect — utility infielder Chico Salmon. It was Salmon's homer with the bases-loaded that capped a five-run inning and pushed the Tribe ahead to stay.

Salmon came into the game with a .242 average. He had hit two previous home runs and had only six runs-batted-in. All three of his homers and nine of his 10 RBI have come at the expense of the White Sox.

It looked as if the Sox were going to pull within four games of Minnesota when they scored four times in the first inning as Moose Skowron broke an 0-for-20 slump with a run-scoring single. The Moose also contributed his 17th homer in the third inning to put Chicago head 5-1.

Cleveland, however, lashed out 17 hits — four by Rocky Colavito and three each by Chuck Hinton and Leon Wagner.

The Yankees' double loss to Baltimore extended their losing streak to seven, their longest since 1953, and put them within one loss or one Minnesota victory of being eliminated from the race.

The Orioles ran their winning string to seven, winning the opener behind Sam Bowens' two-run homer and taking the nightcap as Charley Lau drove in three runs with a double and a single and Boog Powell clouted a two-run homer.

Detroit snapped Boston's four-game winning streak, breaking a 3-3 tie in the seventh on John Sullivan's single and Ray Oyler's double. Norm Cash hit a two-run homer for the Tigers. Boston's Billy Monbouquette suffered his 18th defeat against eight victories.

Jim Hart Powers Giants 3-1

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers wish the Giants had left their Hart in San Francisco.

They had to leave Juan Marichal there, but they brought Jim Hart with them and as a result, the Dodgers are out of first place in the National League for only the 18th day this season.

Hart drove in all of the runs with a single and a homer Tuesday night as the Giants jumped into the lead for the first time by trimming Los Angeles 3-1.

The victory, their fourth straight, put the Giants two percentage points ahead of the Dodgers, one-half game ahead of Cincinnati, one in front of Milwaukee and four ahead of Pittsburgh.

The triumph also gave them a sweep of the two-game series, a sweep accomplished without the help of 20-game winner Juan Marichal, who was banned from Los Angeles because of his bat-swinging incident with Dodger catcher John Roseboro.

The two-day ban, in effect, extended Marichal's eight-day suspension over the incident to 10, which puts him nine days ahead of Hart.

The third baseman-left fielder was hit with a one-day suspension July 25 by Giants' Manager Herman Franks for breaking training regulations. Franks at first said the suspension was indefinite but reinstated Hart after he went to the manager the next day and apologized.

Since then Hart has been greatly responsible for pushing the Giants to the top. In 90 games before the suspension, he had 281 with nine homers and 47 runs batted in. But in just 44 games since, he is hitting .323 while slapping 12 homers and driving in 36 runs.

The Dodgers also felt Hart's bat Monday as he hit a two-run homer that tied the game 5-5. The Giants went on to win 7-6 in 12 innings.

In the only other NL game Tuesday, Cincinnati whipped Pittsburgh 5-0.

Los Angeles is idle today while the Giants play Houston.

Hart's first-inning single, following singles by Jesus Alou and Willie Mays, put the Giants ahead 1-0. The Dodgers tied it against Bob Shaw in the third on doubles by Wes Parcer and Roseboro.

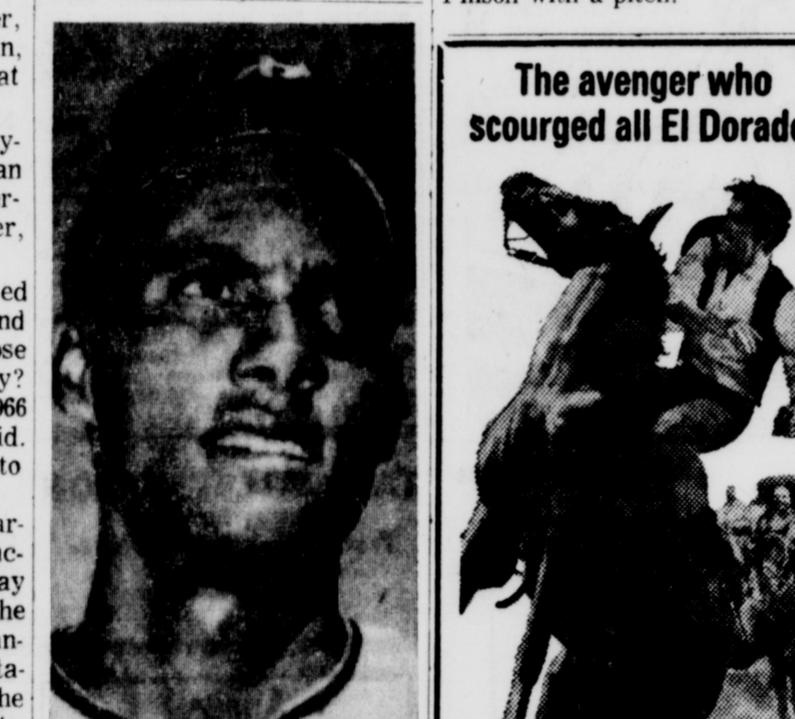

Then, in the fifth, Claude Osteen walked Mays, and Hart connected for his 21st home run into the center field pavilion. Masanori Murakami relieved Shaw with one on and two out in the eighth and set down the Dodgers the rest of the way.

Sammy Ellis gained his 18th victory against eight defeats, limiting the Pirates to three hits and striking out 10. The Reds put the game away with four runs in the fourth inning, two on Frank Robinson's double and the last on John Edwards' homeroom. Don Cardwell started his own downfall by hitting Vada Pinson with a pitch.

NONE OF HIS BROTHERS played under their father, however, and Tim decided against it. He chose Iowa State over Colorado. Why? "Iowa State opens the 1966 season at Wisconsin," he said. "Man am I looking forward to that."

Van Galder broke his collarbone in the early days of practice last fall. He didn't play until the first quarter of the Kansas game when, with Kansas ahead 28-0, Coach Clay Stappleton told him: "I read in the paper that you throw pretty good. We'll see if it's true."

Van Galder hit 14 of 28 passes that day, but the Iowa State offensive wasn't designed for him. He admits, "I run only when I have to."

"Eppie Barney and Tom Busch are fine passers, with great speed and Tony Baker and Les Webster give us the best one-two punch in the league," Tim said. "We're going to surprise a few people."

Communists Protest Territorial Violation

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China protested today against what it claimed were "successive serious violations" of Communist China's territory and sovereignty by Indian troops.

China demanded that India "dismantle" all military structures "built beyond or on the China-Sikkim border."

The Chinese also urged India to "withdraw" its armed forces and "stop all acts of aggression and provocation against China in the western, middle and eastern sectors of the Chinese-Indian border."

The note, issued by the Chinese Communist Foreign Ministry and sent to the Indian government, was broadcast by Peiping's New China News Agency.

Fraud Indictment Dismissed Tuesday

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A mail fraud indictment against attorney Homer Hamilton of Brownsville, Tex., was dismissed Tuesday.

U.S. District Attorney Richard Fitzgibbon said the government's case against Hamilton was "weak because of matters of venue."

Hamilton and the late Edward Owen were indicted in August, 1964, on charge of using the mails to defraud in connection with the operation of an alleged diploma mill at Arcadia, Mo. Owen died before coming to trial.

Van Galder Took No Chances

AMES, Iowa (AP)—Quarterback Tim Van Galder of Iowa State, an all-state pitcher in baseball, didn't pitch in semi-pro ball this summer because the wrist-snap in pitching would hurt his football chances.

"You need a wrist-snap to be effective in pitching," he said, "but you don't want this in football because it gives you a wobbly pass. So I played shortstop this summer."

This is an accurate indication of Van Galder's desire to succeed as leader of Iowa State's new juiced-up passing game this fall.

The 6-foot-2, 173-pound junior missed only two of 20 spring football practice sessions, but found time to be the Big Eight's No. 2 pitcher in earned run average.

During ROTC training camp at Ft. Riley, Kan., this summer he was benched in an all-star game and needed 11 stitches to close the wound.

"I wrote to the coach about it on Red Cross stationary," he said smiling.

His father, Clark Van Galder, is backfield coach at Wisconsin, and a former head coach at Fresno State.

All three of his brothers played college football. Van Galder was an end at Stanford. Bob was a quarterback and Dick a linebacker, both at Fresno State.

None of his brothers played under their father, however, and Tim decided against it. He chose Iowa State over Colorado. Why?

"Iowa State opens the 1966 season at Wisconsin," he said. "Man am I looking forward to that."

New Sound Brings In Millions

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie — Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD, (AP) — Take three Detroit girls, give them glamor trappings and a new rock 'n' roll sound, and what do you get? In the case of the Supremes, a million-dollar enterprise.

Within the brief space of a year, Diane Ross, Florence Ballard and Mary Wilson have been converted into world travelers earning fortunes with their songs. They were in Hollywood on one of their breakneck tours, picking up more loot with appearances on the Red Skelton and Dean Martin television shows.

I caught up with the girls at CBS' Television City, whence they had reported for the first Skelton show of the year.

Diane Ross appears to be the spokesman for the group. She is 21, as is Mary. Florence is the older; she's 22.

"We started singing together seven years ago, when we were 14 and 15," reported Diane. "We sang at dances and shows around Detroit."

"In those days we called ourselves the Primettes. But when we started recording last year we needed a better-sounding name, so we picked the Supremes from a list that the secretary at the record company had compiled. It sounded pretty good."

Their first record, "Where Did Our Love Go," sounded more than good to the teenagers who buy most of today's single records. A million and a half copies went over the counters in this country, another half-million in England. The Supremes seem unable to produce anything but hits, having followed with such solid sellers as "Baby Love," "Come See About Me," "Stop in the Name of Love," "Back in My Arms Again," "Nothing but Heartaches" and "Mother Dear."

U-HAUL, VIETNAMESE STYLE—This is one way to keep everything together. A Vietnamese refugee balances his belongings in one basket and his child—who may also be serving as a lookout—in another during evacuation from a Viet Cong infested district.

These instant classics are whipped up for them by three Detroit boys who write for Motown Records. The Supremes' over."

GOOD CONNECTIONS—Donna DeChaney is certain of plenty of connections in her job. She is surrounded by strings of solder lugs to be attached to wire cables for high-speed electronic circuits which she assembles at a Lawrence, Mass., computer plant.

Man's Ability To Say No Could Mean His Survival

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Man's ability to survive today depends on his ability to say no.

There are so many things clutching at a man's mind, time and pocketbook that he has to adopt a negative attitude as a matter of self-defense. If he can't learn to say no, the piranhas of civilization will eat him alive.

To endure, a fellow must learn to turn a deaf ear to enticing suggestions. For example, here are a few commonplace invitations that can lead only to confusion, bankruptcy, regret or disaster:

"It's only a small friendly game, and we'll put a limit on the size of the bets. You'll be home before midnight, I promise you."

"But supposing I am the one to go first, Henry. Would you want to marry again, supposing you met someone who was really attractive? Now tell me the truth."

"Let me pick up the tickets for the show, and you handle the dinner tab for the bunch. Okay?"

"Try one of these. It's a recipe I made up myself. You mix a quart of gin, a quart of creme de menthe, a pound of brown sugar, three ounces of prune juice and ---"

"I don't care how many fillings you've got, Henry, anybody can crack walnuts with his teeth. There's a trick to it—it's all a matter of leverage. Open your mouth, put the walnut right there, and ---"

"We'd appreciate it very much if you'd accept the chairmanship of our P-TA committee on readership problems in the sixth grade. It will take only a few minutes of your time each month."

"In recognition of your standing as a leader in the community, we are letting you in on the ground floor of a business opportunity that comes only once in a lifetime."

"Dad, these kids don't believe me when I tell them you used to throw 50 yard passes in high school. Here's our football. Show 'em how easy it is."

"Don't let it floor you just because I'm the boss and this is my idea, Henry. If you don't think it is sound, speak right up and say so."

"Anybody can dance the frug. Come on, step out on the dance floor and I'll show you."

"Buy now, pay at your leisure."

"Be a sport, Dad. If you make the down payment, I'll save up and meet all the installments. Cross my heart I will."

"What if you are on a diet? One little piece of chocolate cake won't hurt you."

"The price may seem a bit high for a house this old, but we can practically guarantee you against loss. Confidentially, we hear the state plans to build a six-lane highway right through this land."

"What if the tax people have challenged your 1962 income return. Don't let 'em bluff you. Threaten to take them into court. They'll back down."

"Yes, it's the invitations a man rejects that add years to his peace of mind."

Surveys Indicate Rebuff For Peking's Supporters

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Red China is expected to edge closer to a U.N. seat this fall, but informal surveys indicate another rebuff for Peking's supporters.

In its session starting Sept. 21 the General Assembly will face the China issue for the 15th time. The big question is how long the U.S.-led opposition can keep the door closed. If the present trend continues, some diplomats say the breakthrough may come within two or three years.

One delegate who follows shifting positions on the China question speculates that the vote this year will be as close as 48 in favor and 52 against.

This would leave Peking three short of a simple majority and far below a two-thirds majority, but it would represent a substantial gain. Other diplomats anticipate a lesser gain for Red China.

No vote was taken last year because of the U.S.-Soviet deadlock over U.N. finances. In 1963 the proposed seating of Peking brought a vote of 41 in favor, 57 against and 12 abstaining.

The two-year interval has brought important developments:

—Recognition of the Peking government by France. This could influence the position of several African countries, formerly under French rule, though France has not actively campaigned for Peking.

—Acquisition of nuclear weapons by Red China.

—Escalation of the Viet Nam war and a possible Peking role in peace negotiations.

The Viet Nam question has produced two schools of thought. Some argue that it is

Five-Year-Old Turns In False Fire Alarms

Fewer Accidents Is Aim of Cuban Press

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — Police nabbed without trouble the culprit who turned in two false alarms here.

"He was waving to the firemen when they drove up," police said. They said an unidentified 5-year-old boy reached the fire alarm boxes either by standing on his wagon or a tricycle.

style is now termed "The Motown sound," which has to be heard to be understood.

The lives of the three girls have changed immensely in the past year, mostly for the better. On the good side is the money, which they are husbanding with care.

"We all bought houses for our parents, but otherwise the money goes right into the bank," Diane said. "You never know when the whole thing will blow over."

Indian Problems Many

EDITOR'S NOTE — In the age of the Great Society, 365,000 American Indians still live on reservations, many of them unskilled, illiterate, without hope. Their problems are many, and so are their aspirations, and at least America is coming to grips with the plight of its first citizens. Here is the first of three stories for consecutive Sundays.

By SID MOODY
Associated Press Writer

When Columbus first saw the dull green of land and dropped anchor into the sapphire seas of the Bahamas, then began the long night of the American Indian. The dark has not lifted to this day.

The Indian has been hunted, cheated, killed until today. In the land he once owned, he is a relic, a television folk hero or villain, a curiosity who has been not so much obliterated by American life as simply bypassed.

It may take an effort to see any symbolism in the neon nightmare that blinks and beckons to the tourist along Rt. 66 in Gallup, New Mexico, but like it or not it is there, mid-century America complete with motel pool and beds that will massage you to sleep for 25 cents.

Yet only a few miles away live thousands of Indians who believe in medicine men, can't speak English, fear that if someone takes their photograph he will capture their spirit and who may know that last fall the long ears — the Democrat donkey — beat the nose ropers — the GOP elephant — but that it all happened somewhere in a far off place they call Washington.

There are 365,000 Indians on reservations, and another 185,000 who are now integrated into the American culture, with varying degrees of success.

The statistics of reservation Indians are grim. Infant mortality is 70 per cent higher than the U.S. average. Life expectancy is eight years less. Unemployment runs at 50 per cent.

Population growth complicates the picture. The Indian birth rate is double the national figure and 60 per cent of the Indians are under 21, their productive years largely ahead of them.

The Indian male, no longer hunter or warrior, jobless in the white man's world, increasingly turns to liquor and alcoholism has become a major Indian health problem.

The red man, who once roamed this country at will, now finds himself trapped on his reservation — his last stand. He is not trained or educated enough to move en masse into the modern economy and he realizes it. So he stays planted on the only land he knows. Frustration takes root. Despair is its bitter fruit.

"The only place I have now is the reservation where I can fish and hunt when I get hungry," said Willie Frank, a Colville Indian from Washington. "Now they are trying to take my land and turn me loose into this cruel world. I don't know anything about."

The Indian's world, an impoverished, underdeveloped country in the mists of the richest nation in history will receive $210 million in aid this year from the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs, triple the Bureau's budget 10 years ago. The Indian war now is against unemployment and poor education, health and housing. Some may feel help is almost as belated as reinforcements to Custer. But it is coming.

Paradoxically, it is not always welcome.

"The Indian," says Graham Holmes, an assistant BIA commissioner, "is the only group in the country that is not trying to jump into the melting pot."

Many want to be left alone with their "people," a word one often hears in talking with Indians, with their culture, with what land they have left. In the Taos Pueblo in New Mexico tribal elders have refused to have electricity in their ancient homes.

This is a house, not my home," said Mrs. Adam Nordwall, a Shoshone housewife who has lived in the San Francisco area 10 years. And where is home? "On the reservation with my people."

But this grudging resistance to American culture is largely held among the older Indians. The younger Indian realizes that living on a dole on the reservation is the way to extinction.

"People say, 'Don't take the Indian away from his culture,'" said John Artichoker, a Sioux who is BIA agent for the northern Cheyenne reservation at Lame Deer, Mont. "What culture? There used to be an economic, political and social structure. What's left? The language and dancing."

This clash of the old and the new and of the two cultures produces paradox after paradox on the reservations.

A Sioux medicine man who lives in California studies rocks every morning because they tell him what the day will bring. A janitor at Window Rock, Ariz., who can't speak English comes to work in a 1965 Pontiac. A Navajo housewife from California went back home to see a medicine man because doctors couldn't cure her chronic headaches. He did.

The Indian's trail to the reservation was a tragic inevitability. To him the land with its buffalo, deer and fish was given by nature to be used in common by those who lived on it. Conflict was preordained as the white man with his concept of property rights — and fences — moved westward. The Indian fought for his beliefs and his land. He lost.

In 15 years the buffalo that were the mainstay of the Plains tribes were butchered to near extinction. The Indians were herded onto reservations, literally fenced in some cases and kept alive often by handouts and the government's hopes that a people who had never farmed would become agrarian — and on land largely fit only for grazing. Defeated, deprived of his way of life, the Indian became the government's ward, as helpless, said Artichoker, "as a fly in your fist."

In 1887, Congress passed the Allotment Act permitting Indians to take title individually to reservation land. Motivation behind the act was two-fold. Land-hungry interests felt they could buy away the Indians' land once the government gave up trusteeship. Well-meaning groups were alarmed at the gradual whittling away of reservation land and felt this would stop if the Indian owned criticism: "If the government can't make up its mind, how can we?"

During the Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower administrations policy inclined to termination, turning the reservations eventually over to the Indians for them to operate or dispose of, to get the government out of the Indian business.

Under Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson the emphasis shifted. Philo Nash, an anthropologist who has been BIA commissioner under both presidents, says: "What we are trying to do is pave the way for all Indians to enter the mainstream of American life, either on or off the reservation — to educate the Indian so he can leave if he chooses, and to make the reservation economically viable if he doesn't."

Those are the ends. What are the means?

Education: Of 147,000 school-age Indian children in 1964, 132,000 were in school, 44,000 of them in the BIA's 263 schools, the rest in public and mission schools. In 1960, 52 per cent of Indians in the ninth grade graduated from high school. In 1964, 72 per cent did. About 40 Crow Indians are in college. Five were 10 years ago.

More than 500 Navajos are attending college, aided in part by the tribe's $10-million scholarship fund set aside from oil and mineral royalties from tribal land.

Industry: Since the late 1950s the BIA has helped bring 69 companies to locate factories on reservations, creating 1,500 jobs in everything from making yo-yos to electronic components.

Roads: Ten years ago only a few miles of roads were paved on the Navajo reservation. Now almost 800 miles are. The BIA spent $19 million reservation roads last year.

Health: Through the Public Health Service the government spent $138 per Indian last year.

In 1955, the figure was $55. Five years ago, the Chippewas on the Redlake reservation in Minnesota, the land of 10,000 lakes, finally got running water.

Is too much being done for the Indian and not enough required? Some say yes.

"We owe it to them to push them, like a strict parent," said one BIA official. "We can't expect performance if we don't set standards and make them meet them."

Bill Nye, BIA development officer on the Oglala Sioux reservation, says: "People the Indians would end up on welfare. Well, 45 percent of these Sioux are on welfare now. They come down to the agency and sit on the grass and gossip. We ought to make them go out and look for jobs. We've already lost the middle-aged group to the dole. They say 'You took our land, now support us.'"

But, and it is the biggest 'but' of the Indian problem, will Congress keep the money coming indefinitely?

"Every year," said a BIA official, "some congressman from the East who's never seen an Indian except in the movies looks at the budget and says,

'Good Lord, are we still paying for them?' But if the government stops helping him, it would be sending the Indian to his last massacre."

Time is now a factor in the Indian problem. Can expanded government effort break through the Indian's cultural resistance and bridge the years of neglect and isolation before the ever-increasing complexity of American society leaves him hopelessly behind?

"I think so," said Clyde Pensoneau, superintendent of the Hopi in Arizona.

"This is a hard land. The Indian has had to meet all kinds of challenges to survive in it.

Emergency Team Now Checks Water Users

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The Radio Emergency Association Citizen Team, formed last May to help police combat crime in the streets, is now on the lookout for illegal users of water. The 48 members cruise the streets in private, radio-equipped cars and contact police if criminal activity is spotted. Now the group says it will radio police if they spot illeg-gal water users. Lawn and shrub watering, car washing and some other uses of water have been banned in the city due to drought.

EDITORIALSHe Led an Exemplary Life

To millions of people around the world Dr. Schweitzer was that legendary good man who was helping the natives of Africa.

Few may have known that he was not only a physician but also a theologian, musicologist and teacher, the author of numerous books on religion, music and philosophy, a renowned performing artist on the organ and authority on the life and music of Bach.

In the eyes of the common people of the world, Schweitzer's work as a missionary doctor outshone all his other accomplishments. In his own life his name became a symbol of all that was good and best in the human race.

For a century wracked with national racial hatreds, which produced monsters who raised genocide to assembly-line perfection, such symbols were few and desperately needed.

Albert Schweitzer was born in Alsace on January 14, 1875. After receiving a medical degree in 1913, he put aside his other brilliant careers to found a hospital at Lambarene in pestilential French Equatorial Africa.

Africa then was in the heyday of colonialism, having been freshly carved up into possessions by the European powers. Schweitzer was the missionary, the healer, who has always followed in the tracks of the conquistadors, the type of man who brings to the people rather than taking from them.

In his later years, the almost saintly Schweitzer was occasionally the object of criticism, from both Africans and Europeans. Some of the former, struggling for national independence and no longer wishing to be considered "the white man's burden," saw in him an example of the white man's superiority and condescension.

Debunkers among the latter pointed to his outmoded medical methods, his autocratic rule of his hospital, his lack of sympathy for the changes sweeping Africa.

All of this was straw blowing about the feet of a man who towered in the esteem of the world. Albert Schweitzer will be remembered and revered for his self-sacrifice, his devotion to an ideal—"Do good for the pure love of good"—and also for his simple humanity.

His long life of 90 years was more than a bridge between two profoundly different eras of history. It was a bridge between peoples, between cultures—a bridge pointing toward a better future for all the world.

Kennedy Privacy

What has occurred to the late President Kennedy's confidences in the current flood of memoirs being published, will not happen to his widow.

Immediately after the 1960 election, Mrs. Kennedy took the precaution to have her personal staff, both household and professional, sign a statement that they would not publish any material on the private and personal life of the Kennedy's. The papers were transmitted to Mrs. Evelyn Lincoln, the late President's secretary with the request: "Have her and everyone else sign them and send them back to me."

Mrs. Lincoln never signed the pledge. Neither did the others of her co-workers included in the directive. One source close to Mrs. Kennedy says now that the President persuaded his wife that the pledge was unnecessary among his most trusted aides and secretaries.

The new books prove that the President was wrong. The present memoirs are the product of the persons who loved their boss, but the controversies printed by them must be very disturbing to the Kennedy family and especially to Jacqueline who sought to protect her and her husband's privacy. At least she is legally safe-guarded until her three trusted secretaries recall

Washington Merry-Go-RoundGOP Uses 'Recommittal' Tactics

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Jerry Ford, the handsome, likeable Republican congressman from Grand Rapids, is doing as clever a job of selling Republican leadership to the nation as his home town has done in selling furniture.

But like the veneer on some furniture, Jerry has put a very deceptive front on Republican policy.

He has made it appear that the Republicans were supporting the President on major national policy, though actually he has done his best to cut LBJ's legislative throat.

For Ford has done this through the technique of "recommittal." This is a motion to send a bill back to committee on the ground that it needs revision or further study. This puts the Republican who votes to recommit in the position of favoring scholarly reappraisal, not outright opposition — though in actual fact it's the kiss of death.

Thus when the Negro voting rights bill came up, Congressman Ford did his best to recommit and kill the bill. Negro rights were first championed by the revered leader of the grand old party, Abraham Lincoln.

Despite this, Ford led the Republicans in a motion to send the voting rights bill back to committee, and 85 per cent of his followers thereby voted to kill the bill. The motion was defeated 248 to 171. Then the Republicans turned around and publicly went on record for the bill 112 for and 20 against.

Later, when the Negro voting rights bill came back in a conference report, Jerry adopted the same tactic. Eighty-eight per cent of the Republicans voted with him to kill the bill. The motion lost 284 to 118.

Later the Republicans turned around and voted overwhelmingly for the bill. Thus they could tell the voters back home that they had championed the principles of Abe Lincoln, though actually they had done their best to undercut his principles.

Roll Call of Opposition

Time after time Congressman Ford has adopted this strategy. Here is the roll call of key bills which Jerry Ford tried to bury:

Medical Care for the Elderly — 96 per cent of the Republicans voted to recommit, including their leader Jerry Ford. This was rejected, thanks to the heavy Democratic majority, 236 to 191. Later the majority of Republicans voted for final passage of the Medicare Bill.

The Housing Bill — 97 per cent of the

"The Meeting Will Come to Order, I Hope!"The World Today*Outline for Revolution May Backfire

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the years ahead the Red Chinese may sorely regret their recent outline for world revolution.

It gives leaders of the non-Communist world a justification for action against revolution and undermines the case of those opposing intervention. For example, Viet Nam.

With the Chinese blueprint in mind Secretary of State Dean Rusk Tuesday night said the Communist world's common strategy is to win control of Asia, Africa and Latin America and thus strangle the Atlantic world.

His evidence, if he needed any, is Red China's strategy as given last week in a long article by Marshal Lin Piao, minister of defense and one of the top men around Mao Tse-tung, chairman of the Chinese Communist party.

Marshal Lin said the Vietnamese war demonstrates that a "people's war" in Asia, Africa or Latin America can be waged successfully against the United States. But Red China has Western Europe in mind as a necessary target, too.

Boiled down, the argument goes like this:

The people of Asia, Africa and Latin America may not have the weapons possessed by the United States and its Western allies but, if they have the will to win, they can. But how?

The fight should be made by the people of the countryside against the cities. In the end the Western world is the city and the people of the rest of the world are the countryside.

Thus, according to this thinking, the United States and Western Europe, bit by bit, revolution by revolution, can be encircled and destroyed.

While Marshal Lin suggests that the Soviet Union, now treated with contempt by Red China, is opposed to the kind of people's war he has in mind, Rusk thinks the Soviet Union's ultimate aims are the same as Red China's.

He said the only real difference between those two worlds of communism is how "to get on with the world revolution."

The Red Chinese dismiss as inconsequential the penalties of war by saying "temporary suffering is repaid by lasting or even perpetual peace and happiness."

This, of course, is the unreal, Utopian dream that if the world was full of nothing but Communist nations there would be no war even though the Soviet Union and Red China already are good examples of how Communist nations don't get along.

Lest anyone doubt Red China would get involved in these worldwide revolutions, the marshal says:

"As for the revolutionary wars waged by the oppressed nations and peoples, so far from opposing them, we invariably give them firm support and active aid."

After that statement how could an American president, if he was reluctant to intervene in a Latin-American revolution, right in this country's backyard, be sure it was not fomented and assisted by Red China?

Giving promises that, as Red China grows in strength, it will provide even more aid for revolutions around the world, the marshal says:

"The determination of the Chinese people to support and aid the Vietnamese people in their struggle against U.S. aggression and for national salvation is unshakable."

"No matter what U.S. imperialism may do to expand its war adventure, the Chinese people will do everything in their power to support the Vietnamese people, until every single one of the U.S. aggressors is driven out of Viet Nam."

The Red Chinese stop short in the marshal's outline of saying they would get directly into the war in Viet Nam. But the marshal warns the United States not to get into war with Red China.

As if talking about pancakes instead of human beings, he says: "The vast ocean of several hundred million Chinese people in arms will be more than enough to submerge your few million aggressive troops."

Rusk said he hoped a successful defense of South Viet Nam will help to change Red China's judgment.

Education Revolution'New Chemistry' Attempts To Keep Up With Times

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP) — This is what the knowledge explosion is, and what it means:

"If you started at the first of the year to read everything new in chemistry as it came out," says Dr. Laurence Strong, "by the end of the year you'd be 10 years behind."

It is because of this, and because as much has been learned about chemistry in the past 10 to 13 years as was ever learned before, that many of today's high school pupils are studying a "new chemistry" as part of a curricula revolution in U.S. education.

Strong, who has been head of the chemistry department at Earlham (Ind.) College here since 1952, said, it all started in 1957 at a meeting of high school and college chemistry teachers at Reed College in Portland, Ore.

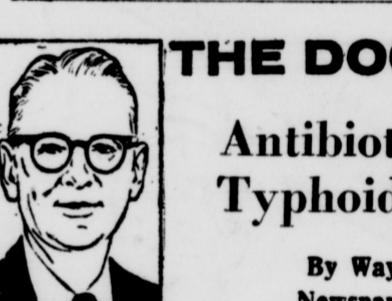

The high school teachers complained that what they were teaching didn't suit them, and was not really relative to modern day chemistry. For instance, one single textbook dominated the high school chemistry field—it gave the teachers little choice," he said.

"I suggested a way out might be to organize a course around a key idea that chemists think significant. I further suggested that 'chemical bond' was such an idea.

"This is the idea that atoms are held together by forces to produce compounds. There are other concepts that could have been used.

"The high school teachers were interested, and asked us to do something about it. So we did."

The chemistry course which evolved from that Portland conference is known as Chemical Bond Approach, often referred to as "Chem-Bond" or simply "CBA."

THE DOCTOR SAYS*Antibiotics Aid To Typhoid Treatments

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

For most persons it has not been considered necessary to advise our third means of protection — typhoid-paratyphoid vaccine. This vaccine should be taken, however, by persons leaving this country to travel in countries where typhoid is common and it is required for all members of the armed forces because they may have to serve in such countries on short notice.

When a case of typhoid is reported in this country, as happens occasionally, it becomes front page news and everyone is advised to boil all drinking water for a few days, that goes for the water you use when you brush your teeth as well.

For those who do get the disease, treatment is much easier than it was 25 years ago, thanks chiefly to the antibiotic, chloramphenicol. If following an attack it turns out that you have become a carrier, chloramphenicol will not help you but removal of the gall bladder usually clears up the carrier state.

Recent studies indicate that another antibiotic, ampicillin, combined with probenecid given daily for three months will clear up this state and spare the victim removal of his gall bladder.

Q — My teen-age daughter perspires very heavily. What is the best way to stop this?

A — Sweating occurs continuously but ordinarily we are not aware of it because it evaporates as fast as it is formed. When visible sweat occurs without being caused by exercise or overheated surroundings, nervous tension is often a causative factor. Learning to be less tense is not always easy but it is a great help.

Antiperspirants that contain alum are popular and do give some temporary relief but this is often followed by a rebound—period of increased sweating when the effect of the alum wears off. One of the newer antiperspirants — AHR 483 — appears to be safe and effective. The same may be said for benzylscopolamine hydrobromide.

on dummy's high spades and then led a diamond. West took South's jack with his queen and led a low club. Note that if South had not taken those premature discards he could have won the trick with dummy's queen, but now he had to win with his ace.

He led a second diamond. West was in again and forced South to ruff his king of clubs. South ruffed a third diamond in dummy; ruffed a spade with his last trump; ruffed another diamond with dummy's last trump and conceded a spade trick for down one.

BERRY'S WORLD

© 1965 by NEA, Inc.

The bidding of today's hand is intriguing. South felt that his hand warranted some slam try after his partner raised hearts and his four club call was a cue bid to start the ball rolling. When North showed no interest by his four heart sign-off South should have let the ball drop but South continued to five diamonds as a second slam try.

North signed off again at five hearts and South was left to play his over-game contract.

Things started out nicely. West opened the eight of spades. Dummy's jack was covered by East's king and South ruffed. The king of hearts and a low heart to dummy's jack picked up the adverse trumps and at this point a diamond lead would have brought home the contract but South was in a hurry to get rid of his two low clubs.

He discarded them right away

Viet Nam Example

Job of Moscow Ambassador Tougher In Some Periods

By HENRY S. BRADSHAW
MOSCOW (AP) — Sometimes it's hard and sometimes it's harder — the job of representing the United States in Moscow.

Viet Nam has brought U.S. Ambassador Foy David Kohler into one of the tougher periods.

It is not the first one. Kohler got a quick baptism of fire. When he arrived three years ago, Nikita S. Khrushchev invited him to the Kremlin. Khrushchev talked three hours but did not mention that he was sending missiles to Cuba. Within a week the 1962 Cuban crisis had exploded.

From that low point, relations soared to the high point of the 1963 treaty banning nuclear weapons tests in the atmosphere. Emphasis grew on the two super powers' getting along well together.

Viet Nam has soured things again. Soviet denunciations of American policy are frequent.

Kohler has found himself increasingly frozen out.

It is always difficult for a foreign diplomat here to have meaningful conversations with Russians because of tight-lipped security and suspicion. Those Russians who talk with Kohler have become even more formal and uncommunicative than normal.

Kohler, 57, a small, weathered-looking man, has reacted with a brittle antagonism.

Soviet officials found Kohler's predecessor, Llewellyn Thompson,

Reagan May Follow Lead Of Murphy

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sen. George Murphy seems to have started something by attributing part of his 1964 success at the California polls to his good-guy image on television rerun movies.

Ronald Reagan, who may not always get the girl but is rarely the villain in vintage films still on TV, currently is a serious prospect for California's Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Simple addition suggests that if old movies seen by comparatively small audiences can help elect a candidate, a fellow whose show has a high Nielsen rating ought to be swept into office by a landslide.

Steve Allen, a star of a network show ("I've Got a Secret") in Nielsen's list of the 20 most popular programs, is reportedly thinking seriously about running for a soon-to-be vacated congressional seat.

Dan Blocker, who plays a bumbling strongman named Hoss in "Bonanza," also talks about running for public office. And apparently his interest in politics is real.

Robert Vaughn, a supersecret agent in "The Man From U.N.C.L.E." has a passion for politics second only to his love of acting. During the last campaign he worked for Pierre Salinger's election.

If popularity with the public were all that is needed to win votes, Blocker would be a shoo-in for the office of his choice. "Bonanza" is consistently rated as the nation's most popular television show.

Steve Allen's public image might work against him: He has a reputation as a keen wit and sharp satirist. Practical politicians have been leary of witty intellectuals since the second defeat of Adlai E. Stevenson.

son, a pleasant man to deal with. Thompson went back to the State Department, but the Russians continued to do business with him through Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin in Washington.

In addition, the Cuban crisis resulted in the hot line from Kremlin to White House. Although it has yet to be used for a crisis, it is another factor tending to put Kohler on the sidelines.

Nevertheless, Kohler's job remains a huge one. He has said that today's diplomacy requires knowledge of the history, culture, and political, economic, technological and social forces at work in the area where the diplomat works.

To help him gather this knowledge, Kohler has 28 diplomats and 118 other American employees, plus Russian housekeeping employees.

He has four specialists in economics, two men who study the internal Soviet political situation, six experts on different aspects of Soviet foreign policy, three agricultural specialists.

Kohler must decide what to do on the spot in Moscow when he lacks time to consult Washington.

When Premier Alexei N. Kosygin talks of "the aggression of U.S. imperialism" at a Kremlin reception, Kohler must decide what to do. One night recently, he walked out of the Kremlin in silent protest.

When mobs of Soviet citizens or foreign students decide to demonstrate in front of the U.S. Embassy, obviously with official permission at the least, it is up to Kohler to decide how to react. Kohler's tendency is a tough reaction. In diplomacy, that means a sharply worded protest.
